Linklaters strengthens its Energy & Infrastructure practice in the Middle East with hire of David Miles (pictured).

The Dubai based partner is a legal veteran with over 20 years of experience in structuring, advising on, and executing complex, high value financings in the energy and infrastructure sectors. His international experience extends beyond borders, with a particular focus on the Middle East for over a decade.

Miles joins Linklaters from Covington & Burling where he was a partner in the Project Development and Finance Group in London. Prior to that he was a partner at Allen & Overy, where he worked for over 16 years, in the UAE, London, Hong Kong SAR, Tokyo and New York.
