MVP Tech Group, a UAE-based security, IT Infrastructure and software engineering company serving private enterprises and government clients, has successfully completed the sale of its business to Convergint, a US-based global in service-based systems integration company.

The acquisition will extend Convergint's services to clients within the government, military, and private sectors across the Middle East as well as add more than 200 colleagues to its global operations.

Founded in 2003 and headquartered in Dubai, MVP Tech Group has three offices across the United Arab Emirates and Iraq with near-future expansion plans into KSA.

Clifford Chance has advised MVP Tech Group in the transaction. The team was led by partner Jack Hardman (head of financial services regulatory and fintech practices - Middle East) as well as UAE corporate/m&a partner Mike Taylor and supported by senior associates Jordan Knowles and Noor Al Kooheji.
